

Manual Test Plan - Spoiler Alert

1. Ensure that truth-value spoilers get blocked on twitter
2. Check that the app doesn't block data that isn't post content
3. Test that the app doesn't interfere with the other html elements on the webpage

The screenshot shows the Twitter profile of Game Of Thrones (@GameOfThrones). The profile header includes the name, handle, and statistics: 59.9K Tweets, 40.7K Following, 6.83M Followers, and 8,481 Likes. The bio reads: "Tweet what is yours. #GameofThrones Watch episodes of #GoT today: itsh.bo/PrepareForWint...". Links for HBO, gameofthrones.com, and the join date (August 2010) are listed. A "Tweet to Game Of Thrones" button is present. Below the bio, there are 38.7K Photos and videos, with a grid of six thumbnails showing various Game of Thrones-related images. The "Who to follow" section lists Maisie Williams (@Maisi...), HBO (@HBO), and The Walking Dead AMC, each with a "Follow" button. A "Find people you know" section with a Gmail icon is also visible. A "Connect other address books" link is at the bottom. A "Spoiler Alert" overlay is in the top right corner, showing a toggle switch that is currently turned on (blue). The text "SpoilerAlert is currently enabled." is displayed. Below the toggle, there is a dropdown menu labeled "Pick a TV Show" with a blue arrow icon. The main content area shows a tweet from Game Of Thrones (@GameOfThrones) featuring a GIF of Jon Snow from the show. The tweet has 37 replies, 381 retweets, and 3.0K likes. Below the tweet, it says "Game Of Thrones Retweeted" and shows a retweet from KCRW (@kcrw) dated Dec 8. The KCRW retweet features a video thumbnail of the Game of Thrones Iron Throne.

1. Test that the application can be toggled on and off
2. Ensure that the application only blocks spoilers when toggled on
3. Ensure that you're able to pick a TV Show to block from a pre-determined list
